

Environmental Issues

The rainforest is being cut down more than 20 percent of the original rainforest is already gone and without stricter environmental laws and more sustainable development practices, as much as half of what remains could disappear within a few decades. The rainforest includes many animals such as snakes, lizards, frogs, birds, sloths and howler monkeys. People are having campaigns to stop the cutting down of the rainforest but nothing is completely stopping the cutting down of the rain forest. I think that we should stop the cutting down of the rain forest and start planting more trees and plants. If we don't then pollution will increase and more people will die from cancer and related illnesses.
